

Put your data in trusted hands and streamline the way you do business

SOLUTION OVERVIEW

Challenge

When it comes to data security, privacy, and unintended leaks, the statistics are daunting. Recent studies show the business sector accounted for over 65% of breaches in 2019 alone.¹ The reality? Not only does your firm house crucial insights to your business online—but it does so in a global environment.

The Internet has transformed the way you do business: multiple tools connect us in ways that simply weren't feasible in the past. The creation and proliferation of tech tools isn't slowing down either. In fact, the average person maintained 27 passwords in 2016, an increase from 6.5 in 2007.² It's easy to see how the majority of business data breaches are due to hacked passwords.

It's not enough to invest in technology at scale for your organization if it falls short of protecting the data you use to win business.

Solution

The elements of your software's security measures shouldn't stop at simply ensuring your data is safe—especially when you're protecting a platform robust enough to manage your project pursuits, proposals, and key business contacts. You need a platform that acts as a strategic partner invested in not only your growth, but enabling your firm with best practices to prevent security breaches.

You've got big business to attend to, and even bigger things to build. It's time for a platform tailor made for the myriad of handoffs and collaborations your business requires, all while keeping your data safe; a platform that reduces the sheer amount of passwords employees are required to keep track of, adds an extra layer of protection to your account, and enables a critical eye to system changes is crucial to the demands of our virtual business world.
