

Leverage the power your commitment to sustainability brings to market

SOLUTION OVERVIEW

Challenge

The appeal of sustainability is thriving. You live in a built world where market growth is led by increasing urbanization and international commitments to curb emissions. New laws are cropping up to promote and encourage green buildings, and even investors consider it critical selection criteria. How could they resist? Green initiatives in the U.S. alone are likely to surpass $100M in value by the year 2023.<sup>1</sup> There are now an estimated 600 certifications and growing at the global level<sup>2</sup> making it complicated and time consuming to determine which are most reliant to winning any given project.

Leading firms want to use their growing list of credentials to attract more business and draw interest to their projects – but many lack technology sophisticated enough to actually use those certifications strategically.

Solution

Creating spaces to work, live, and play that are smartly efficient are a standard component directly tied to how you win business. However, the growing number of credentials supporting sustainability and energy efficiency are only valuable if you can easily source them for the right projects.

You need a single source of truth to easily help you determine which standards, certifications, and rating programs carry the most weight for any given project. Only a robust CRM purpose-built for the AEC industry that understands the unique nuances around sustainability would allow you to slice and dice through numerous project certifications your firm owns and serve you up the right one at the right time.
